Nonprofit Models for Just and Equitable Biomedical Engineering Research and Development.

Jessica Tucker
Stony Brook University

The nonprofit pharmaceutical company, One World Health, presents a nonprofit model for just and equitable health care research and biomedical engineering. In this "brainstorming" session, I'd like to explore how nonprofits can and have been used (within an "ethic of care" framework) to promote justice in engineering, in particular regarding drug delivery solutions for the developing world.